Washington, DC -- Congressman Todd Akin (R-MO) released the following statement in response to President Obama's press conference on his proposed jobs bill:

"Instead of repeating the same mistakes that have deepened our financial crises, the President needs to work for real solutions. Unfortunately the President insists on pushing tired, failed, job killing policies - more stimulus, more debt, more taxes and more burdensome regulations. He should instead work with the Congress to create certainty in our economy, relieve businesses of costly red tape regulations, and let American families keep more of their hard-earned dollars. Only then will America go back to work and our economy recover."
